LUCIFER, BY SNOWSTORM,
Will stand the present season at COTTAGE HILL, on the Frankfort and Georgetown Turnpike, 7 miles from the Forks of Elkhorn, and 7 miles from Frankfort, at $1500 insurance, and, pastured furnished gratis to mares coming from a distance.

Description and Pedigree.
Lucifer is a black iron gray, 5 years old, with heavy white mane and tail; 15 1/2 hands high, and is a horse eminently calculated to produce stock suited to every purpose for which the horse is required. Being himself in form, mild and gentle in disposition, with action both for harness and saddle rarely equalled, very few, if in deed any, horse in Kentucky of his age can show greater trotting speed in harness, and it has been with great difficulty that he has been restrained from going all the saddle gait, being sired by old Snowstorm, who went one gait as naturally as another, and all with unparalleled speed and style, and produced by a fine saddle and harness horse in the two seasons he made in Kentucky than any other horse known. He was of the pure Norman blood bred from Canada, and his color and his commanding wherever found extraordinary prices. Lucifer is a large brown mare; blood unknown; was a dam and pace and could, without training, pace her mile in 3 1/2 minutes.

Invites the attention of breeders to this young horse, at his stand, where I have a good track, and where persons wishing to breed can have an opportunity of witnessing his speed.

CHEMICALLY PREPARED
GLUE

FOR FAMILY USE.

Will mend articles in Wood, Leather, Crockery, Glass, Ivory, Bone, Alabaster, Marble, Rubber, Gun Powder, Cloth, Paper, Papier Maché, Shell, Plaster, Horn, Bone, &c.

And indeed there is scarcely an article in the whole range of domestic economy, whether it be for use or ornament, which, when broken, cannot, with this preparation, be restored to its original value. It challenges the world for its superior. It is indispensable in every HOUSE, WORKSHOP, COUNTING-ROOM, And no person after a trial of would willingly dispense with it for four times its cost. It is always ready, and always reliable. It is not offensive to the smell, and it is not affected by climate, and where known it has become a FIXED FACT.

The attention of all consumers is invited to the following testimonials regarding its superior qualities:
NEWARK, Nov. 26, 1859.
"After a faithful trial of Starr's Prepared Glue on Wood, Leather, and Cloth, at the Phoenix Works, I most cheerfully recommend its use for all purposes generally required, and especially for family use."
C. A. CARTER.

"We, the undersigned, having tested STARR'S PREPARED GLUE, agree with the above recommendation."

THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE
COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA,

Is the Great Renovator of
THE BLOOD.
THE SOVEREIGN REMEDY FOR ERUPTIONS OF THE SKIN,
ULCERATED SORES,
And All Forms of Cutaneous Diseases.

THESE complaints can be speedily and effectually cured by the use of this World-Renowned Sarsaparilla.

Thousands have experienced its salutary effects, and tens of thousands have witnessed it, until it has ceased to be a question among the intelligent portion of the community.

When the Blood becomes lifeless and stagnant, either from the effects of Spring weather, change of climate, want of exercise, the use of a uniform saline diet, or any other cause, this compound Extract of Sarsaparilla, will renew the blood, carry off the putrid humors, cleanse the stomach, Regulate the Bowels, and impart a tone of vigor to the Whole Body.

TO THE PUBLIC.
The public are hereby notified that the preparation extensively known as DR. S. P. TOWNSEND'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA, is now manufactured under my direction and supervision, from the original recipe obtained from Dr. S. P. Townsend; and I certify that it is composed of ingredients PURELY VEGETABLE, and WITHOUT MERCURY; and also that the ingredients are judiciously compounded, so as to obtain from them their greatest medicinal effect.

JAMES R. CHILTON, M. D., Chemist.
DR. S. P. TOWNSEND'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA, is a preparation among all civilized nations as the best preparation for

Renovating and Purifying the Blood which science has ever offered to man. In this resides its PECULIAR EXCELLENCE, and to this is due its world-wide renown.

It contains all the vegetable principles which experience has proved useful in CLEARING the SYSTEM from DISEASE, extracted and combined with the highest skill which the refinements of modern chemistry enable us to employ.

Whatever may be said by mortified competitors or scientific physicians, the fact that this medicine is every where used, and that its use creates an increased demand, shows conclusively that it possesses medicinal merits of the first order.

CAUTION.
To avoid IMPERFECTION it will be necessary to see that DR. JAMES R. CHILTON'S CERTIFICATE, as well as the SIGNATURE of Dr. S. P. Townsend, is on the outside wrapper of each bottle. Be very careful to use no other.

THE COMMONWEALTH.

Turkey Tom of 'Arkansas.'

Written for the N. Y. "Spirit of the Times" by "CHARLES BOWEN."

The Southwest, in years gone by, as the "Bee Hunter" well knows, was full of original characters; many still linger among us, but the clearings which everywhere prevail are letting in the sunshine of conventional life, and fast consuming the individualities alluded to. Among those who have left a mark upon the neighborhood in which they lived, was "Turkey Tom"; he has long since disappeared, but he is still remembered as one of the best hunters and a wifeliest hen on record.

Tom was not reckoned much of a beauty; he was a long lank pattern of humanity, hawk-nosed and hatched faced, with shocking red hair, and a pair of deep sunken grey eyes, which were always "skinned," and appeared to be trying to get a peep into the middle of next week. He was born, bred, brought up, and polished off in the State of Arkansas, and left home with a through ticket for any kind of a spree—from a ball to a "bar fight," from a corn shucking to an election riot—a graduate at all kinds of hunting, but "specially death to turkeys, bar, and deer." His habits were solitary, and he built his cabin for him and his fellows in the heart of the woods. Occasionally, though, he would come into town, always with his rifle on his shoulder, and then the grocery was his headquarters for the day. Striding up to the bar with his long swinging gait, he would turn to the crowd with the air of a prince, and with a majestic wave of his hand: "Gentlemen, yours obediently; what are we to drink?" The company were expected to "line in." Tom had but one loss, and that was invariably after touching glasses all around: "Gents, to the bottom it was forty feet," and down went the whiskey without a pause. Usually very taciturn, nothing short of a gallon of the "forefaded" could induce him to "open"; but once started, he could discourse by the hour upon the glories and beauties of his native State—Arkansas. Hear him "spread himself."

"Arkansas is the garden spot of art—the cream of the created universe. The soil is richer and game is plentier than in any other section in the world. The only drawback to health is the human artiquities fever and ague, as some folks call 'em—'which is awful. In fact, I have known the 'shakes' so bad that the glasses all shattered under the hands of the 'Bee Hunter.' The 'Arkansas' river, and every mile or so the passengers had to get out and shove the boat over the sand-bars; and one morning the fog was so thick that we had to use bowie knives to cut our way through. Arkansas beats the world for black bars, pretty women, and big timber. I've seen trees here so high that the first limbs were clean over night, and so big that it took a week to walk around 'em. A feller started once to walk through one that was hollowed out carrying his vittals with him, and he starved to death on the trip. I was wine up the Mississippi one time in one of them little up-country boats, when we met the 'Arkansas' express 'baitin' in. I tell you it was a whopper. The Captain run his boat alongside, and fastened the ropes to it. Off she started snortin' and puffin', but it didn't budge a peg. The Captain ripped around, 'cussin' like fury, and hollerin' out, 'Fire up below there, you lubberly rascals!' The wheels clattered away, and the blaze rolled from the chimney, but the big log was still carryin' us down stream. Drickly up come a feller in a red shirt, and says he, 'Capen, you are strainin' the engine miltin'.' 'Cut loose and let it go, then,' says the Capen. They cut the ropes, and the boat then went ahead a little ways, but the engine was raly so exhausted that we just had to stop. Next day there come along a fine big steamer; we hailed her, got aboard, and there was that same big log hitched alongside. We wooded off o' that cypress all the way to Memphis.

"Black bars are bigger, plentier, and more common in Arkansas, than in the rest of creation. The old he has a way o' standin' on their hind legs and makin' a mark with their paws as high as they can reach, and the best of the best of the race, generally a sassafras. It's a kinder rec'd they keep, and I s'pose it's a great satisfaction to an old he bar to have the highest mark on the tree. I was a layin' hid one day close to a tree where the birds wur in the habit of makin' their marks, waitin' for one of them to come along. After a while, when the noise close to me, and lookin' around, what should I see but a small bar walkin' straight on his hind legs, with a big chunk in his arm's. I could a' shot him easy, but I was mity curious to see what he was gwine to do with that chunk. He carried it rite to the tree where the marks wur, stood it on end and put it up, and then glittin' on top of it reached way up the tree and made a big mark about a foot above the highest. He then got down, moved the chunk way off from the tree, and you never seen such caperin' as he cut up. He would look up at his mark, and then lay down and roll over in the leaves, laughin' outright, just like a person; no doubt tickled at the way somebody would be fooled. There was somethin' so human about it I hadn't the heart to shoot him.

"Just to show how cunning 'bars' are I'll tell you what happened to me up in Arkansas. You see, one fall, before I gathered my corn, I was miltin' it outer the field, and I knew the bars wur takin' it, for I could see their tracks; but, what seemed mity curious, I never could find where they eat it—nary cob nowhere abouts—One mornin' I happened around the field, and there I saw an old she and two cubs just come outer the patch, walking off with their arms full o' corn. I was determined to find out what they did with so much corn, and followed along after 'em without makin' any noise. Well, after goin' nearly a mile, I saw 'em stop, and—g-d, what do you think?—there was a pen full o' hogs, and the bars wur feedin' 'em. You see that season the hogs were so poor, on account of havin' no mast, that they wouldn't make even good bar feed, and the bars wur actually built a rail pen, put hogs in it, and were fattenin' 'em with my corn!"

"I recollect well the first time I ever saw 'Turkey Tom.' Some years since I was out hunting early one mornin' during the 'gobbling season,' and was quietly stealing through the woods, when I was suddenly accosted by some one issuin' from a thicket.

"Hello! I say, stranger, you aint seen nuthin' of a one-eyed, ball face, bob tail pony cruisin' around here this mornin'?"

"Nary one-eyed, ball face, bob tail pony, my friend," I replied.

"Well, I reckon the little cuss has strayed out to his home."

"The speaker was about moving on, when, seeing that he carried a rifle, I asked him if he had been successful in hunting."

"Stranger," he answered me, "I am allers successful, and it don't matter whether in clearin' or canebrake, ef ever I put my eye on a varmint he has about as much chance as a nigger baby in a bar fight—he's a gone darkey, certain." As for turkeys, I don't know whether they wur made for me to hunt, or I wur made just to hunt 'em. You see, when I was a baby they were in the key bone to cut teeth on, and I rather reckon it wurkey into my nature. Stranger, a turkey gobler is mity cunning—the cunningest thing in the world, I reckon, except a wide awake wild deer, or a one-eyed banker. Hunt a gobler, sit close for a while, and he will go so smart that he won't gobble without runnin' his head in a hole, and won't cross a branch where it is muddy enough to show his tracks. Up in Arkansas once I hunted jess a one a considerable spell afore I fixed him. I had my heart set on killin' him, and I acially believe if I hadn't got that gobler it would have been the death of me. He dodged me so long that I was jess wastin' away to a shadder. That turkey costed me my stomach and gobbled in my eyes every night. Last, though, I fixed him at last; he was too fat and heavy to fly, and, findin' it wur no manner of use tryin' to burn powder at him, one mornin' I put my dogs on his scratches. My dogs is fast, but they run that gobler three hours before they caught him. The last mile I could track him jess by the grease that dripped outer him as he became heated, and when the dogs picked him up he wur acually nuthin but one gob of fat and feathers. Stranger that gobler's beard was so long that he allers carried the end of it in his mouth in running to keep from treadin' on it, and his spurs were so big that I used one of 'em for a powder horn.

"Remarkably large turkeys you have in Arkansas," I hinted.

"Yes, stranger, but everything else is big in proportion in that State. The musketeers grow to be as big as jack snipes, and the ticks are larger than your terrapins here."

"That is my earliest recollection of 'Turkey Tom.'"

"Pray for him and let him pass!"

Alluding to reminiscences, I am rejoiced if my acially that has recalled to memory the many pleasant hours which you have wiled away on the shady banks of the sparkling Amite, and spent in spinning the minnows over the clear lakes of 'old Concordia,' casting about the mouth of the Coodora, where bar-fish and trout most congregate. Blessed are they whose lives have been as pleasant as yours. What a host of reminiscences must crowd upon you as you revert to the days of long ago—the days of picture painting and parlor life—the days spent by the rolling surf of the Southern Gulf, fishing, crabbing, and tempting the lazy gull within gunshot—the ruder days of hunter's life in swamp and canebrake—the days of 'Live Oak Inspector,' shooting ibis and alligators along the sluggish Bayous of Louisiana—of, far back in time, the days when you presided over the 'Intelligencer' with your friend Patterson—not him, though, surnamed 'Bully,' about whom the world is still so anxious in putting the question, 'who struck him?'

Softly! Perhaps, in raking among the ashes of the past, I have disturbed the grave of some long since buried hope, or resurrected some ambition remembered but as a futile dream, or perhaps I have dug up some memento hidden with its recollection! Peace be with thee and thine, 'Tom Owen.' May your shadow never grow less, and may you live a thousand years to hold the reins with the 'Senior' over the true 'Spirit' team.

Have you forgotten your friend W—, who gave you the 'wrinkles' about turkey hunting and arrow fishing? If so, turn to the 'Hive of the Bee Hunter,' and there you will find his 'picture,' as he reclines with his rifle behind a log, his eye intent on the turkey strutting in the distance. W— was a bachelor then, a hunter, a philosopher, a philosopher, a picker up of small change, and a lover of a 'hanty.' Now he is a married man, turns his attention to 'revenue,' and is the independent proprietor of a two story house with paint on it. He still keeps in order his rifle and fishing tackle, though all game has long since disappeared from his neighborhood, and a six inch sucker looks to him 'very like a whale.' He tells me to say to you that his fighting weight is now two hundred and fifty pounds, and still growing.

INSTRUCTION AT WEST POINT.—A compromise of the difference between the two Houses, in regard to the period of study and course of instruction at West Point, was effected in a conference on an amendment to the Army bill providing for a commission of six, two from the Senate, two from the House, and two from the Army, who should visit the Academy and report a plan of re-organization, as far as may be desirable. Messrs. Davis and Foot have been appointed on behalf of the Senate, and Messrs. Curtis and Hughes on the part of the House. The President has not yet selected the Army officers. This Commission will meet in the course of a few weeks, and by personal examination endeavor to resolve some of the difficulties which have embarrassed the institution under the last and present Administration, during which the period has been capriciously changed forward and backward.—Louisville Journal.

VERY LIKE HANGING.—After the vote had been taken at Baltimore, to make the nomination of Douglas unanimous, Dave Todd of Ohio, who occupied the chair, is reported to have declared the result in the following language:

"With heartfelt satisfaction, as presiding officer of this convention, I declare Stephen A. Douglas, by unanimous vote, the candidate of the Democratic party of the Union, for President of these United States, and may God, in his infinite mercy, protect him and the Union he represents. This morning, the first of the day, the language addressed to the crowd at the close of a sentence of death, and the circumstances under which it was used undoubtedly suggested the form of it.—Detroit Advertiser.

MUSIC AND MONEY.—A punster, asked by a musician whether he was not a lover of harmony, replied:

"Yes, but I prefer it rather abridged—that is, dropping the first syllable, for then it becomes—money, and that, you see, is the best of the lot. Again, I have no objection to your notes, but I like those of the Bank of England much better; you may make good tunes, but those make infinitely the best of tunes."

"How so? That bank notes are good things I allow; but pray what tune can be made out of them?"

"The best tune in the world, goose, don't you see—a-for tune."

We understand from the Louisville Democrat that the Douglas and Johnson Democrats of Kentucky will not support a Breckinridge and Lane candidate for the Clerkship of the Court of Appeals. Well, what about the nominating Convention? Will the Douglas and Johnson Democrats sit in Convention with the Breckinridge and Lane Democrats? Or will the Breckinridge and Lane Democrats sit in Convention with the Douglas and Johnson Democrats?—Lou. Journal.

A fellow, the other day, sold some clothing to a Jew. After the sale had been concluded, he said to him:

"Do you not know that they hang a Jew and a jessack together on the gallows in England?"

"Well, no," was the rejoinder; "but ain't it a blessing that both of us ain't there, seeing that they might hang one on the gallows on this nation, and the other on the account of his nature."

We clip the following from the Louisville Democrat:

A SHORT DIALOGUE.—General Combs said Breckinridge to Leslie, a white ago, "I could er that you have done more for your party and received less return for it than any man living." "Just the opposite of your case," responded the General; "I judge that you have done less for your party and got more for it than any other live man." The people conclude they were both more than half right.

"Why, you're only a 'prentice," said an aristocratic little fellow, tauntingly, to a hard-fisted little fellow with whom he was at play. The latter turned proudly round, and while the fire of injured pride and the look of pity were strongly blended in his countenance, coolly answered him, "So was Dr. Franklin!"

Bathing, in Liberia, may be very pleasant but must be a little risky. A recent paper from the colony states that a negro woman, who was oute water for a bath, was suddenly "taken in out of the wet" by an alligator. The voracious monster devoured the colored lady without dressing.

The census takers find great difficulty in ascertaining the ages of girls, a large majority of them being only sixteen. In one family in a neighboring State, there were found to be ten between ten and sixteen years of age.

SIMPLICITY OF NATURE.—As the words in all language, in all their prodigious variety, are compounded of a few simple characters, so, in like manner, are the agencies and powers of the universe composed of a few primary or original springs of motion.—Bacon.

Early Recollections.

BY L. T.

To one who now visits Covington, Newport, and Cincinnati, and crosses the Ohio on one of the elegant steam ferry boats, it may seem strange to be told that in the memory of one only fifty years of age all the crossing was done in skiffs and flats.

There are some few yet living who remember 'old Adam' and 'old Sampson,' two negro men who belonged to Gen. Taylor, who kept the ferry from Newport to Cincinnati. They were slow institutions even in their day. Many a time have we, when a boy, sat on the river shore for hours waiting for an opportunity to get across, and then been literally blistered by the sun before we could be landed on the Cincinnati side.

No other ferry roads than steps out in the bank at short distances apart, to prevent slipping up if the ground was wet; no paved wagon or foot ways at that period.

The first step in the way of advancement was the horse boat, propelled by a few blind horses. This was regarded as a wonderful improvement, and a moonlight voyage on the horse boat of Pilmy Blies, with a band of music, and some of the bright lassies of that day, was regarded as a wonderfully pleasant incident.

Steamers have sent the horse boats adrift, and now, when you step aboard, you are hardly seated until the boat has landed you on the opposite shore.

Nearly every one has read the pleasant story of 'the last of the Keel Boatmen,' but no one has ever recorded any thing about the last Ferryman who used the skiff and flat.

Capt. Massie, an old Revolutionary soldier, six feet six inches, and made in proportion, was the last one at Newport. He had generally one or two darkies, or one darkie and one white man, to transport man and beast across the Ohio.—The Captain was always close at hand when his services were wanted. If it was a footman he very politely said to him, 'you be to pay me, and Stephen will take you right over.' If a horseman or wagon he took his post at the steering oar and directed the unwieldy craft while the men pulled up the bow oars.

When not employed, the old Captain was on hand at 'Doxon's corner,' ready to deal out to the loafers a continual string of anecdotes, gathered up in the rough and tumble life he had lived for a period of over eighty years.

His account of the scenes on board of the Jersey Prison ship, where he was a prisoner, often brought tears to the eyes of his roughest hearers—ironed in pairs, crowded and badly fed, disease and death were their constant companions. He had to lay down several days and nights beside his sick companion, who was unable to walk about, and laid all night with his corpse after his companion died before his manacles were taken off. It was a subject he rarely spoke of unless interrogated, and when he did speak of it, honest mention was made of some comrades fortitude and cheerfulness in bearing up under sickness and suffering for the cause of his country.

The Captain was a man of mark everywhere he went. He was a giant in size and strength; brave as a man could be, and nearly always in pleasant humor. He could neither sit or stand still while telling an anecdote, but, like a chained bear, walked round and round, stepping his left foot over his right, and tapping the forefinger of his left hand on the palm of his right, and becoming so absorbed in the story he would be telling he seemed forgetful of everything else.

We recollect one night the boys had gathered in Williams' shoe shop, the old Captain came in and commenced describing how two of the old citizens acted, who had been used to crossing the river every day, but who were sureties for some neighbors who had failed to meet their notes at the Branch Bank of the United States in Cincinnati, and were therefore afraid of a copias. They would walk up the river bank to the landing, and down to the water's edge, look sorrowfully across the water, and then walked back up the hill again. The boys were so amused at his manner of describing the gentlemen, and he, becoming so interested, wholly forgot where he was, and, in getting up, walking round and setting down again, he forgot himself, pushed his coat-tail aside, and set down on the hot stove. The story ended quickly. In much shorter time than the burn was cured.

Illustrative of the old man's forgetfulness of everything but the one idea at a time, we give the following:

The denizens of Cincinnati, in an outbreak of great moral influence, stormed all the bawdy houses on the common below Main street, and the dwellers therein scattered—some to the Kentucky side. They, however, went back and forth after night across the river.

The Captain had laid down one night rather earlier than usual, but was aroused by a knocking at his door. He got up, lit his candle in his big lantern, and doubtless supposing it was very late, he came out of his front door in his night clothes to get his ferriage, and 'to let Stephen take the passenger right over.'

On coming out he found the person to be a female. She asked him how much ferriage was to pay; he replied fifty cents, as it was late at night. She swore he was an old extortioner, and she would not pay it, and began talking in a loud voice. The Captain having the fear of his wife before his eyes, stepped out and told her to go away immediately; and she began to get back; and he follow up, until they got out fifty or sixty yards from the door, when the woman raised the cry of murder, fire, &c., &c. Up flew the windows, and out popped the women's heads, and there was the Captain, with big glass lantern in hand, with his naked proportion in full view.

It was not bed time, and the loungers at 'Doxon's corner' had been looking on, enjoying the sport, but as soon as the windows were raised the boys commenced hallooing 'blow out your light Captain; 'douse your glim,' and a hundred other exclamations.

Until that moment the old fellow had wholly forgotten he was in his shirt tail, and not in fit condition to see company.

When the steam ferry boat took the place of the slower craft, the old Captain's occupation ended, and he shortly thereafter wrapped his mantle about him, and was placed in the old burying ground where so many sleep, and where the friend, who was away for a year after he laid a loved one to rest, was unable, on his return, to tell the spot from that occupied by a stranger.

THIRD VOLUME

THE KENTUCKY FARMER.

Only One Dollar Per Annum!

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE!!!

THE SECOND VOLUME of the "KENTUCKY FARMER" will close with the month of June, and the Third Volume will commence in July. We promised two years ago to our subscribers that we would publish a paper of Kentucky a paper worthy of their patronage.

We put the question now to every one of our patrons:

Have we redeemed our pledge? If so, we give you a fair equivalent for THE KENTUCKY FARMER, which was paid for the KENTUCKY FARMER. If so, let every one of our present subscribers renew their own subscriptions, and we will send us one or more additional names for the

THIRD VOLUME.

The receipts for the First Volume about paid the expenses of its publication. We promised our patrons that we would publish one volume whether we obtained a sufficient amount to pay its expenses or not. We renewed that pledge. The subscription list has increased. The second volume is nothing like so large as it should be. Shall we have the kind and continued support of its present patrons, together with their aid in excluding its circulation? If so, we promise to do every thing in our power to make the paper worthy of a generous Kentucky public.

The "KENTUCKY FARMER" will still be published monthly, in its present form of sixteen large quarto pages, for ONE DOLLAR per annum, payable in advance.

As the small amount charged for the paper will not justify the trouble and expense of collecting subscriptions, no paper will be forwarded unless paid for in advance.

Subscriptions can be forwarded to us by mail as our risk. Letters addressed to us need not be postpaid.

Special Train for Lexington.

A special train will leave this city tomorrow at 7 o'clock, A. M., and return leaving Lexington at 6:20 P. M., to accommodate those persons who may desire to witness the military parade on that day.

Price of tickets one dollar and fifty cents for the round trip. Good for one day only.

Hon. Caleb Cushing seems to have very little modesty or delicacy of feeling. It is known that when he withdrew from the Chair of the Democratic Convention in Baltimore, his retirement was hailed with rapturous applause, and exclamations of "that's right; now we will have a just and impartial chairman," &c., which would have been keenly felt by any man of sensibility, and whose cheek was not as hard as stone. But the Hon. Caleb Cushing was to all appearances entirely calm, and exhibited not the least emotion. We suppose a man who has, like Cushing, made several political summer-saults, and has changed front on every political question, is not apt to have his equanimity destroyed by demonstrations of that sort. We were surprised that such a man should have been placed in the chair at Charleston, but we have not been at all surprised at any of his acts in the chair, or out of it, as we do not think he is governed by principle in anything, but only by a desire for the spoils of office.

The Breckinridge and Douglas papers and speakers are pummeling each other in a savage manner just now. Well we have no part in that fight, except to look on as the woman did when her husband and the bear were fighting, and don't care much which whips. We think the fight will result very much like that of the Kilkeny Cats, and nothing will be left of either fighter but a good deal of fur and blood, and the tips of their tails.

The Louisville Journal says "a part of our vocation is gone or going. We don't well see how we can go on mauling the Democrats. They are mauling each other so terribly that we have scarcely the heart to strike a blow. Even when we do strike, we have to do it with an averted head, so that perhaps we don't always hit exactly where we want to."

We see from our Tennessee exchanges, that there is but little enthusiasm for either Breckinridge or Douglas, in the ranks of the Democracy in that State. If either has an advantage in strength it seems to be rather in favor of Douglas, as the citizens of Tennessee of all parties are for the Union, and the Breckinridge movement is considered there as a step towards secession. But from all accounts from Tennessee that State is certain for the Union ticket. Bell and Everett will get many Democratic votes, and all the old Union Henry Clay Whigs and Americans of Tennessee.

THE ISSUE MADE UP—UNION OR DISUNION.—The Nashville Republican Banner says, a prominent Democrat yesterday boldly acknowledged the fact that he would support Breckinridge because he is a sectional candidate, and mainly for that reason. He was in favor of a sectional candidate in the South as well as in the North. Very well, we accept the issue. Let all who are for the Union, the Constitution, and Enforcement of the Laws, vote for Bell and Everett—all who are for prolonging a sectional contest, which must inevitably result in disunion, in the inauguration of anarchy, and in the inevitable destruction of the South, her institutions and her prestige, vote for Breckinridge and Lane. We have no doubt where the intelligent masses will go. The echo of the voice of Jackson is not yet dead, and all over the Union is heard the patriotic sentiment—"The Federal Union—it must be preserved."

THE Louisville Journal says, "The Democrats differ strangely, unaccountably, as to the comparative strength of Douglas and Breckinridge in Louisville. We have heard Breckinridge Democrats say that it wouldn't be safe for a Douglas meeting to be held in the city, and we have heard Douglas men say, compared with the Breckinridge men, are at least as four to one. All we can say is that a large majority of all the Democrats here whom we have conversed with, prefer Douglas to Breckinridge, and not a few of them, in our opinion, are likely to go for Bell rather than for either."

OUT FOR BELL AND EVERETT.—We are much pleased to see the evidence every day that there is still a strong Union sentiment in the Southern States. The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle and Sentinel, one of the ablest papers in that State, which has been awaiting the action of the Baltimore Convention before assuming a position, has run up the only National Flag—BELL AND EVERETT, and commenced the fight in good earnest. The enthusiasm is spreading for the Union ticket. Look out for an 1840 fight.

BELL AND EVERETT ENVELOPES.—We see it stated in some of our exchanges that a new idea for the campaign has just been started in New York. It is an elegant buff envelope, bearing on the face the motto, "The Union, the Constitution and the Laws," surrounded by thirty-three stars, representing the States. On the back are the words—"Hon John Bell, of Tennessee, for President; Hon Edward Everett, of Massachusetts, for Vice President." Every Union man should supply himself, and thus scatter good seed by the wayside.

DEATH OF AN EDITOR.—Hudson M. Garland, Jr., editor of the Blue Ridge Republican, (Col. paper C. H., Va.) died at his residence at that place Wednesday evening last, after a protracted illness. He was a brother of Hon. James Garland, of Lynchburg, and of Gen. John Garland, U. S. A. He had been connected with the press of Maryland and Virginia for ten or twelve years, and was a polished and vigorous writer.

The Democratic Central Committee—Revolutionists in the Party—The Frankfort Convention of the 18th.

We find the following leader in the Louisville Democrat of last night:

The State Convention, called for the 18th, to nominate a Clerk for the Court of Appeals, was well enough when it was issued; but a change has since come over a portion of those who have been heretofore Democrats. Such a Convention is not an expedient. The bolting disease is quite prevalent, and if the Democracy of the State were fully represented in the Convention, we should have another bolting scene. We are not going into a Convention with such Democrats. A National Convention has nominated a ticket, and these men refuse to support it. They cannot expect that the Democratic party will take counsel with them as to a candidate for a State office. It is, moreover, simply impossible to get a meeting in which even half the counties will be represented; still less is it possible to get a fair representation of political sentiment. Half a dozen men can get up a meeting and send them to Frankfort to choose a candidate, when the rest of the county sympathize with them. We are tired of these misrepresentations of the party, and, for one, don't intend to submit to them. They are of small consequence, when all concerned have a common purpose; but at present those who will meet under this call are as opposite as any two parties can be. Our advice is, to let this nomination of a Clerk of the Court of Appeals go overboard. It is a small consequence, and a Convention got up by a few counties close to Frankfort can easily be manipulated into the service of a few active politicians, whose purpose it is to promote the interests of a bolting ticket. Let them have a Convention of their own, and let us have a nomination of their own, and support it themselves.

A call will be made shortly for a Convention of those who stand by the antecedents and creed of the party, and who intend to support its regular nominees, to fill up an Electoral ticket. We hope the counties will begin at once to appoint delegates to this Convention. They need not wait for the place and time to be fixed, as these will be indicated by the voice of the counties themselves. We would, however, suggest Louisville as the place, as it is more accessible than Frankfort. In the meantime, we repeat, let this Convention at Frankfort, on the 18th, slide. If rumor does no injustice, a majority of the Convention will be made up of seceders. They are revolutionists in the party, and have no right to act for it. They can set up no plea of regularity; for they belong to a crowd that have seceded and tried to break up the party. It may be said that by refusing to take any part in this Convention, we give the office of Clerk of the Court of Appeals to the Opposition. Very well. We should not meet in a Convention with a set of Oppositionists—the most bitter and proscriptive of the two—to beat the other.

If a sound Democrat were nominated on the 18th, one who supports the national nominees, the supporters of Breckinridge and Lane would bolt; that is part of their creed—bolting. They are not making majority of the party are to day for Douglas and Johnson. There is little doubt of that; and if the State were properly represented, there is no doubt of the result; but there is no time to secure a fair expression; and if we had it, the result would be a bolt, and another nomination, after the example at Baltimore. We, therefore, suggest to the true Democracy of the State to have nothing to do with the Convention on the 18th.

So it seems the National Douglas Democrats do not intend to submit quietly to the manipulations of the Central Committee and State office holders at Frankfort. They intend to have a Convention of the Regulars and Nationals at Louisville, and manage their own affairs in their own way.

This is certainly prudent in them, unless they have made up their minds to let the Breckinridge seceders and office holders manage the party for their own advantage, without regard to the interests of the National Democracy.

GREENSBURG, Ky., June 28th, 1860.

Messrs Editors—I see that our townsman and fellow-citizen WM. B. ALLEN, is announced as a candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals; subject to any action that may be taken in regard thereto by the Union party. I have known him long and know him well; he is a man eminently qualified to discharge the arduous duties of that office; he is a whole soul Union man; polite, affable, familiar and agreeable; social and very popular with his acquaintances; and I should like very much to see him promoted to the office to which he aspires.

Respectfully, yours &c.,

JAMES T. GOALDER.

ANOTHER GREAT SALE OF STOCK.—R. AITCHESON, Esq., of Woodford, advertises in the Observer and Reporter another great sale of stock, to come off at his Woodburn farm on the 22d of August next. The stock to be then sold consists entirely of horses, of which there are a large number of thoroughbred mares, trotting mares, and colts and fillies. Mr. Aitcheson has for years been engaged in rearing the very purest and finest stock in the country, both for racing and trotting purposes, and the sale now advertised will offer inducements to those who wish to supply themselves with pure bred stock such as has not before been presented in Kentucky, if in the United States.

SONS IN EAST TENNESSEE.—The Nashville Patriot publishes the following cheering extracts from a business letter concerning the prospects of Bell and Everett.

"I have been traveling for five weeks in several counties of East Tennessee, and so far as I have seen and heard any expression of opinion, the nomination of Bell and Everett takes well with the conservative portion of the people, including a great many Democrats. I find a perfect host of honest Democrats who will not support the nominee of either Democratic faction."

From all quarters of the country the same gratifying intelligence greets us. These signs show no comment—they speak for themselves, and show that the patriotic and incorruptible people, are enlisted for the Constitution and the Union, and will rally zealously for their preservation.

The Union party had a grand Union meeting at Clarksville, Tennessee, on the 25th ult., and nominated John F. House, one of their best men and a most eloquent debater as their elector. The most enthusiastic feeling prevailed, and the finest effect was produced.

Two MEN SHOT.—Sunday evening last, at Gallows's Switch, in Fayette county, Wm. Sensing was shot with a double barrel gun by J. M. Abel. Sensing died in a short time. His son who was with him was also shot by Abel and it is thought he cannot live. We have not the particulars. Able has been arrested.

FRANCES, the negro woman who poisoned the family of Mr. Hiram Berry some time since, (none of them died, being relieved by proper remedies), was on yesterday found guilty, and sentenced to be hung on Friday the 7th September. Her counsel moved for a new trial, but the Court overruled the motion. We understand an appeal will probably be applied for.

The following is a sample of the numerous letters constantly receiving for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters:

CANANDAQUA, July 15, 1859.

Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburg, Pa.—Gents: As we are strangers, I herewith enclose you twenty-eight dollars for four dozen Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which please forward via Michigan Southern Railroad, Toledo, Ohio, and Clayton Station. I have purchased several dozen bottles at Toledo this summer, but the sale is on the increase so much that I wish to open a direct trade with you. I was induced to try your Bitters by my physician, for the Liver Complaint, and received such material aid that I have recommended it to others and have sold about two dozen per week for some time. I have all kinds of medicine in my store, but there is none that I can so cheerfully and truthfully recommend as your Bitters, for I know they have helped me beyond my expectation.

Yours respectfully,

PHILO WILSON.

These valuable Bitters are for sale by all drug gists in this city.

DIVIDENDS DECLARED.—The Farmers Bank of Kentucky has declared a dividend of 5 per cent. on the business of the last six months.

The Bank of Kentucky has also declared a dividend of 5 per cent.

The Franklin Bank of Kentucky has declared a dividend of 5 per cent.

The Louisville Gas Company has declared a dividend of 6 per cent.

The People's Insurance Company of Louisville has declared a dividend of $5 per share.

LARGE SHIPMENTS.—It is astonishing to see the large amount of McLean's Strengthening Cordial that is shipped off daily to different parts of the country. It is scarcely three months since this article was first introduced, and now, judging from its rapid sale, it is known and appreciated all over the Western country.

Every druggist, dry goods or grocery merchant visiting our city, should be sure to obtain a supply of this Cordial. It is just the thing required to strengthen and invigorate the weak and debilitated.—St. Louis Democrat.

A NEW CANDIDATE FOR THE PRESIDENCY.—The Milwaukee News acknowledges the reception of the following letter. Judged by the republican standard, it must be acknowledged that the gentleman's claims for the nomination are good:

DARTFORD, June 8, 1860.

Gents:—Please forward my name to the Baltimore Convention as a candidate for its President.

I split rails in this State twenty years ago, also wore leather breeches. I am sound on the goose question.

GEORGE DART.

A Democratic editor, who is in trouble and is lamenting over the destruction of his party asks "what shall we do?" The Athens Tennessean gives him the following good advice: "The best advice we can give our distressed friend is, to let the wicked thing slide, and henceforth serve the Lord and keep his commandments."

The St. Louis Evening News says, the Democratic split in Missouri is extending, a large and enthusiastic meeting of the friends of Breckinridge and Lane was held at Huntsville, Randolph county, last week, at which Mr. Cunningham, the Democratic candidate for the Legislature, took ground strongly against Douglas. Per contra, a large meeting of Douglas Democrats was held at Kansas City on Wednesday night.

The editor of the Murfreesboro' (Tenn.) Telegraph says that the friends of Breckinridge and Lane and the friends of Douglas and Johnson find it utterly impossible to get up the slightest feeling in that quarter. He says they see that there is no hope whatever for their favorites, and he adds—"a large number of Democrats in this region will vote for Bell and Everett as the only possible chance to beat the Black Republicans."

A mass meeting of the Democracy was held in Covington Saturday night. Major H. C. Harris, heretofore one of the Douglas file leaders, announced himself for Breckinridge. Col. Geo. B. Hodge, elector for the State at large, made a speech giving in his adhesion to Major Breckinridge.

LARGE SALE OF A COTTON PLANTATION.—Joshua M. Craig of Chicot county, Arkansas, recently sold to Judge Francis Griffin, of Washington county, Mississippi, his plantation and negroes, known as the 'Leland Plantation,' for the hand some sum of $400,000—$100,000 cash and the residue in seven equal annual payments, with eight per cent interest.

The Methodist Church at Nicholasville, Ky., has been blessed with a gracious revival of religion. Thirty persons have been added to the church. Within a few weeks one hundred and twenty-five persons have been added to the Methodist Church in Jessamine county.

Next to a good table and a clean bed, the first consideration in a Hotel is comfort; and for this we know no place we can recommend more highly than the United States Hotel in Louisville.

The Sixth Annual Fair of the North Kentucky Agricultural Society will be held on the grounds of the society near Florence, Boone county, commencing on Tuesday, August 28, and continue five days.

It is said that agriculturists through the country are becoming alarmed at the rapid increase of noxious weeds, until recently unknown in America, which are brought over in the straw used in packing crockery crates, and in the soil around fruit trees, shrubs and plants.

Baltimore has quieted down again. The Front Street Theater and the Market Hall have both been plentifully sprinkled with chloride of lime, and great care taken to prevent the spread of any infection. The gouged out eyes, broken off thumbs, broken revolvers, dirk scabbards, and other fragments of the conventional history of the city, are to be collected and deposited under a suitable monument.—Louisville Journal.

Some surprise is expressed that so very weak and inexperienced a statesman should have been selected by the seceders as Joe Lane. But we should remember that he was the last of the litter of candidates and consequently bound to be a runt.—Lex. Jour.

FERNANDO WOOD AND O. F. E.—A dispatch to the New York World says:

Fernando Wood is here holding solemn convales with the Administration. He is said to have urged upon the President the necessity of coming out vigorously and with all his forces for the rights of the Union. Mr. Wood would operate against the ticket in New York. Mr. Buchanan promised faithfully that he would do his worst.

Gov. Wise, of Va., some time ago declared that Douglas's programme was but a short cut to all the ends and aims of Black Republicanism. "Short cut" is good. It is expressive; and we propose that Douglas hereafter be designated as the "Short Cut" candidate, and his Abolition, Republican, and semi Republican adherents, as the "Short-Cut" bolters.—Lex. Courier.

CLERK OF THE COURT OF APPEALS.—A large number of candidates for the Clerkship of the Court of Appeals are making their appearance. At this time we have no choice, as we do not know how the various gentlemen stand politically. There is one thing that we shall not do, if we know it. We shall not vote for a Douglasite. If the Convention nominate a true man, we will support him. If it nominates a Douglasite, we will bolt him.—Piedmont Herald.

The intention of the Secessionists is not to separate the entire body of the Southern from the Northern States, but only the Cotton States from the Union. They expect Kentucky, Virginia and the border States to remain in the Northern Confederacy, so as to have a belt of States between them and the North to return the fugitive slaves. Will Kentucky sympathize with those who declare this their object?—Lex. Democrat.

How are those amiable gentlemen who composed the late Central Committee at Frankfort, and who took up with disunion? Oh, Johnny Breckinridge! You are responsible for even more than deserting your party. How could you ever have been hoodwinked and led astray by those amiable old gentlemen with your "Southern tongue?" You are a bad boy, John, and should be spanked and put to bed for playing tricks on the old folks.—Lex. Democrat.

Mr. Dickinson of New York, who used to be the leader of the New York Hards, but who joined the Softs a few months ago, has now gone back to the Hards and is supporting Breckinridge and Lane. He is with the Hards when he acts from his heart, and with the Softs when he acts from his head.—Lex. Jour.

We trust the true Democracy will not be idle in these momentous times. A treacherous blow has been struck at the Democratic party by Southern Disunionists, whose avowed object is "to precipitate the cotton States into a revolution."—Louisville Democrat.

FOR CHILDREN TEETHING.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and small brown spots, possibly due to age or handling. A dark horizontal strip is visible along the bottom edge, which could be the binding or the edge of the book's cover.
